

What did we talk about last week?

Last week, we started to work on an Easy Read about safe communication online.

We said that to communicate safely online, people should be careful to not share too important information about themselves.

During the session, we discovered that most people find it difficult to say "no" to something.

We said that saying "no" is not being rude and that it is important for people to communicate when they do not want to do something.

Saying "no" is part of assertive communication. Assertive communication means telling other people what we need in a nice way.

Tonight, we will help Include to make an Easy Read about being safe communicating online. We will also talk a bit about the next heritage walk.

See you all later!
